THOUGHT TO BE REAL

Big Banks Took Worthless Paper as Security for Loans Over Long Peirod.

The way in which ten worthless certificates of stock of the Laclede Gas Company of St. Louis, forged by two youths as a means of getting rich quick, but never used by them, were accepted in Wall Street without question as security for louns of thousands of dollars, was a big part of the testimony to-day against George H. Lowden, a member of the Meadow Brook colony, who is on trial before Judge Nott, in General Sessions, on a charge of forgery. He is accused of having used the ten certificates as margin securities in carrying an ac-count in the mame of Frank A. Weston with Ebrich & Co. of No. 76

Exchange Place.

The certificates of stock were forged, it is alleged, in 1911, by Fred A. West and Charles H. Goodwin, the hank, who is under indictment for forgery. The former has been a fugitive from justice since Lowden was arrested. The certificates were accepted without question by Ehrich & Company at par value for security when Lowden opened the Westen ac-

Their usefulness did not cease there, however, for William J. Ehrich, the head of Ehrich and Company, under cross examination by Abraham Levy, counsel for Lowden, admitted that the counsel for Lowden, admitted that the forged stock certificates had been used as security for loans to his firm from twelve or fifteen trust companies and banks during the eighteen months the Weston account was in existence. He could not remember how much money had been borrowed on this stock, but said banks usually loaned 80 per cent, of the market value, and at this time the Laclede Gas Company stock was counted as Gas Company stock was quoted at par, so the forged certificates were accepted as worth $100,000.

Howard H. Buck, also a member of the firm and a friend of Lowden, testified he never saw Weston, and expressed the belief that no such person existed.
